Tour in Iceland 2019

Itinerary

Day 1  Keflavík airport – Reykjavík

Day 2  Golden Circle

Day 3  South shore

Day 4  Reykjanes peninsula

Day 5  Departure transfer – Keflavík airport
Day 1 – Arrival transfer, Reykjavik.
Arrive in Keflavik airport where the coach will pick up the group and drive them to the hotel in Reykjavik.

Day 2 - Golden Circle
This is a classic circuit and is an impressive introduction to some of Iceland's natural wonders.

The Geysir area in Haukadalur displays a varied and colourful volcanic landscape with steaming fields, bubbling hot springs, the original and famous Great Geysir (dormant) and the very active and regularly shooting Strokkur Geysir. Landscape colours range through white, creams, yellows, reds and browns. Time can also be spent in the Visitors' Centre here to learn more about Iceland's vulcanology and glaciology (as well as the extensive gift shop and café).

Friðheimar
Friðheimar Green house give visitors insight into the processes of greenhouse horticulture, with a short an informative talk on the subject. It is quite remarkable that it should be possible to grow vegetables in this cold climate, by creating Mediterranean conditions, all year round, through the long dark winter.

Day 3 - South Shore
This tour will head along the south shore of Iceland, all the way to Vik.

This area is well known for its beautiful landscapes, magnificent waterfalls, rich farmlands, large areas of black sand, great glaciers and small villages.
During the day, many stops will be made at interesting places, such as Seljalandsfoss waterfall, which is a unique waterfall that is 60 meters high with a foot path behind it at the bottom of the cliff, but with a thin cascade. Skógafoss waterfall is one of the most beautiful waterfalls in Iceland, 62 meters high and 15 meters wide waterfall, the last and most spectacular in a series of falls that are found in the Skógá River.

Furthermore, we will take a look at the stunning basalt columns jointing on the Reynisfjara beach, Reynisdrangar that are a collection of 66 meter high rock pillars that rise out of the sea.

Day 4 – Reykjanes peninsula

Stopping at some of the most intriguing points in the area.

Stopping at highlights as The bridge between two continents: The lava-scarred Reykjanes peninsula lies on one of the world’s major plate boundaries, the Mid Atlantic Ridge. According to the continental drift theory the Eurasian and North American tectonic plates are continuously drifting apart with great forces under the gaping rifts. The bridge was built as a symbol for the connection between Europe and North America.

At Gunnuhver is the biggest active hot mud spring in Iceland. The geothermally active Krýsuvík (Seltún) is where we stop to look at hot springs and boiling mud pots. At Krýsuvík, dramatic red, green, and yellow coloured hills frame an expanse of steaming volcanic vents and boiling hot springs.

We will also stop at Reykjanes’ „Blue Gem“, The Blue Lagoon. This wonderful, spacious spa bathing pool really does invigorate, revitalize and gives a relaxing time.
